

ARE YOUR INVESTMENTS TIED TO GENOCIDE?

Many financial institutions invest in PetroChina, a company which, through its parent, CNPC, provides Sudan's government with revenue that has been helping fund the Darfur genocide for years. The conflict has claimed 300,000 lives and left millions homeless. With a billion-dollar stake in PetroChina as of January 2011, JPMorgan Chase is one of its largest investors. On May 17, JPMorgan Chase shareholders have the opportunity to vote for genocide-free investing. How would you vote?

Tell JPMorgan Chase to avoid investments tied to genocide.

www.InvestorsAgainstGenocide.org

Investors Against Genocide